Beth Ann was driving to work one morning. The traffic was terrible and she was running late--- again! She had just dropped off her two little ones at school. They barely made it in time. She had an argument with her boyfriend that morning too, which set the tone for the day. This was becoming an almost daily occurrence. The argument this time was over something so silly that she already forgot what it was about.

Now, because she was running late for work, she was trying to drive and text at the same time. She wanted to get a hold of her co-worker to let him know to start the meeting without her. She would be there as soon as she could.

Beth Ann saw that she was coming to a light so she figured she could get this text out. Well, she took her eyes off the road a little too soon and banged into the car ahead of her. The front of her car was dented as was the trunk of the other car! She started to cry. She really felt as if she were at the breaking point. It just seemed her life was spinning out of control.

They pulled over to the side, and the driver of the other car got out. Of all things, it was a priest, or at least that was how he was dressed! And Beth Ann thought to herself: "Why is everything so complicated? Why couldn't I have been involved in a fender-bender with a normal person."

She went over to him and apologized, stumbling over her words trying to explain what had happened. She was visibly upset, and the older priest couldn't help but notice this. He tried to calm her down and assure her that everything would be fine---no one was hurt, and it looked like there wasn't too much damage.

It was exceptionally cold and windy that morning and there happened to be a Starbucks on the corner. The priest suggested that they wait in there for the police to arrive. While in the Starbucks, the priest again asked if Beth Ann was ok. She said unconvincingly that she was, but then just blurted out: "Father, everything in my life is going wrong".

Humanly speaking Beth Ann was not exaggerating. Her boyfriend, who had moved in with her a year ago, was becoming difficult to live with. Her two children from her previous marriage were still struggling in school and seemed too quiet and sad when at home. She thought that they were having a hard time with her divorce. Her Ex was sending her letters through a lawyer about custody issues, and Beth Ann needed to get out of the apartment she was in. But the thing that most bothered her was that she hadn't spoken to her father in over three years.

The priest was silent for a moment and then said to her that, first of all, she had to forgive her father. The Lord would have to take care of the rest. But in his opinion God's call was clear: Forgive your father.

As Beth Ann was driving to work she was thinking about that conversation---one of the strangest in her life; and she couldn't explain why she just blurted out all her problems to this person. She didn't even go to church all that much anymore. Yet somehow she knew this kind old priest was on to something. She would have to give serious consideration to what he suggested. And, for some reason she felt calmer than she had in a long time.

The woman at the well, and Beth Ann may have a lot in common. And there was the encounter in both cases that helped each of these women come face to face with themselves---perhaps for the first time. The encounter with Jesus brought this about.

Sometimes we feel overwhelmed with all of our problems. Fr. Jacques Philippe wrote: "I have often observed that people in difficult situations who come to terms with their inability to understand everything and begin to ask what God wants of them here and now receive enlightenment little by little".

This is great wisdom. The Samaritan woman was given a way out as a result of her encounter with Christ. So was the character in the story after her strange conversation with the old priest. Sometimes we can feel at peace when we receive the grace to understand what the first step is.

So, let me leave you with this: If people know what they must do today and commit themselves to doing it, and leave tomorrow to God's providence, all is well. What more can anyone do? Take the step that needs taking today. Take another step tomorrow. Every day will have its own steps to take.

March 17: St. Patrick, Bishop

St. Patrick was a 5th century missionary to the people of Ireland. According to his autobiography, St. Patrick was captured and sold as a slave in Ireland when he was 16. There, he was forced to work as a shepherd for 6 years until he escaped and returned to his family. Later in his life, he became a priest and heard the Lord's call to return to Ireland and spread the Gospel. There are many stories about St. Patrick's life, and while their historicity is uncertain, they all show St. Patrick as a fervent missionary for the Irish people. Catholicapostolatecenter.org

Patrick: The Brave Shepherd

Fun-loving Patrick had it easy at his parents' seaside villa. At 16, he thought he had it made for life—that is, until the day riders kidnapped him to nearby Ireland. Now a slave and shepherd, Patrick faced a bleak and uncertain future. To survive, he'd have to conquer cold, hunger, wild beasts, and even worse enemies.

Praying the Stations of the Cross for Healing

This Lent, pray the Stations of the Cross through the lens of healing—for ourselves and for others.

The Seventh Station—Jesus falls the second time

Healing from Addictions and Discouragement

The remedy for human weakness is to keep trying. See Jesus fall and get up a second time. Be there.

The Eighth Station—Jesus meets the women of Jerusalem

Healing from Blindness to Danger

We cannot prevent effects unless we recognize their cause as causes. Hear what Jesus says to the women of Jerusalem. Be there.

The Ninth Station—Jesus falls the third time

Healing from Temptation to Give Up

The only true success is to try until we die. See Jesus at the end of his strength, falling again. Be there.

March 19: St. Joseph, Patron of Fathers

St. Joseph is known in the Gospels as a humble carpenter, the husband of Mary, and father of Jesus. Joseph's paternal care of Jesus, loving protection of Mary, and his commitment to the education of Jesus led to him being declared patron of the whole Church. Many popes have written about St. Joseph, including Pope Leo XIII in Quamquam pluries and Pope John Paul II in Redemptoris custos. Throughout Church history, many famous pieces of art have depicted scenes in the life of St. Joseph, from Jesus' birth and childhood, to St. Joseph's carpentry, to his death.
